

Fair will be biggest, best ever

Elk Point Agricultural Society has their biggest and best Fair ever planned for this coming weekend, August 6 and 7. In addition to the Bench Fair at the Seniors Recreation Centre, this year will feature the debut of the Elk Point and District Livestock Show at the Fair Grounds and Show Arena on Saturday, August 7.

Livestock Show spokesman Chris Havener said response to the show is good from both exhibitors and sponsors. Entries are coming in from Lloydminster, Bonnyville, St. Paul, Derwent, Two Hills and Dewberry as well as the local area, and as far as sponsorship is concerned, "some sponsors are coming to us instead of us going out to them." The list of sponsors already exceeds fifty businesses and individuals. The names of major sponsors, either businesses or individuals, are going in for a draw for the Grand and Reserve steers.

The Classic Steer Stake will go from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. on Saturday, with a $3000 prize for the Grand Champion Steer and $2000 for the Reserve Champion. The Heifer Stake goes from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Other activities at the Fair Grounds include a Team Roping Jackpot starting at 1:00 p.m. and a Barrel Racing Jackpot at 4:00 p.m., as well as a fun auction, petting zoo, and possibly displays of llamas and Dexter cattle.

Havener says that, being the first time, "we may have a few flaws in our show, but next year will be better!"

For further information on the Livestock Show, you may contact Chris Havener at 724-2233, Eric Holthe at 724-2558, Albert Naber at 724-3989 or Glenn Harms at 724-3770.

Bench fair

Plans for the Bench Fair, to be held in the Seniors' Recreation Centre, are also going well. Exhibits will be taken Friday, August 6 from noon until 3:30 p.m., with judging taking place later that afternoon and evening. Public viewing is Saturday, August 7 from 2:00 to 7:00 p.m. Prizes will be awarded at 7:00 p.m. Saturday.

Fair sections include Baking (convener Lyn Young, 724-2149), with 34 categories to enter, and Canning (Lois Yaremkevich, 724-3823), with 50 categories, for those with talents in the kitchen. Those with green thumbs will want to enter Fresh Fruit (Lena Stepa, 724-3673), Vegetables (Katherine Shymkiw, 724-2187), Flowers (Terri Kopeck, 724-4165) and House Plants (Maryann Kozicky, 724-2184). Glenn Flanders (724-2269) is the convener for Grains and Hay. Arts, Crafts and Hobbies is under the direction of Lee Johnson (724-4450), with Knitting, Crochet and Weaving under the direction of Ellen Seward (724-2345). Gloria Zarowny is the convener for Sewing (724-4374). There are 25 categories in the Photography section, convened by Lillian Demchuk, and this year's Meet The Challenge word is "Shadows." Creative Writing, convened by Vicki Brooker (724-4087), has Open, Senior and Junior categories. The Seniors have their own section, convened by Diane Young (724-2588), with 26 varied categories, while the Junior Fair, convened by Gisele Pederson (645-5919) is the largest section of all, with 104 categories to suit every talent.

REVIEW

Volume 12, No. 31 45 cents (GST incl.) Tuesday, August 3, 1993

NEWS AT OUR DOOR - Sometimes the news happens right on your doorstep. This was the case last Thursday, when the Review had an unscheduled early opening, courtesy of culprits unknown. Faye Smith and RCMP Cst. Pat Wasylynuk survey the damage.

Secure your premises, businesses told

Four break-and-enter burglaries in recent weeks, the latest early Thursday morning, prompted Elk Point RCMP to appear at a special meeting of the Elk Point Chamber of Commerce to urge businesses to secure their premises to minimize the possibility of further break-ins.

Constable Pat Wasylynuk told the Chamber that "basically the same method of entry," by breaking a window or door, had been used in all four incidents, and that cash, plus in some cases cigarettes, had been taken. These similarities lead him to believe that the same person or persons may have been responsible.

The RCMP cannot solve these crimes without the help of the community, Cst. Wasylynuk said. One call received that morning "gave me several clues. The puzzle is starting to come together."

Cst. Wasylynuk asked the community to "try to get involved. When you see suspicious vehicles, let us know. It gives us something to go on." A recent break-and-enter in Heinsburg was a prime example of community involvement. He and another officer responded within 12 minutes to a report of glass breaking, and found the culprits still in the premises, which was surrounded by four local residents who had taken such measures as writing down the licence number on the vehicle, and its description.

Due to the current economic conditions, it impossible to increase the number of staff at this and many other detachments. Information received from the public helps the RCMP with their big task of keeping crime in check. "We try to respond to all calls, but we cannot do it alone," Wasylynuk said, noting that the community needs to be more pro-active, with crime prevention measures, rather than reactive, after an incident has happened. In addition to their working hours, the officers from this detachment do an estimated 60 to 80 volunteer hours of overtime per month, including touring around town before the go off shift, checking alleys and other areas for potential problems.

"These people are getting better and better at their crimes. They case areas out and do their homework. These individuals may have been in your building and know where things are kept," which makes it easy to get what they want and get out quickly, he noted.

There are numerous ways to deter these people. Alarm systems are good, but expensive, Cst. Wasylynuk said. Cheaper means of protection include plasticized windows that do not break as easily, bars on windows and doors, and locks that open only with keys are among these measures. Lighting systems, solid back doors, blinds left open are also ways to deter potential burglars.

"The bottom line is, secure your premises. We've had four break-ins in the past month and I don't think it's over."

One possible way to reduce crimes would be the establishment of a Neighborhood Watch. The RCMP is willing to help with the setup, once a committee is established. Neighborhood Watch involves an educational and awareness process, and is similar to the Rural Crime Watch. Both of these organizations have proved successful in many communities.

Almost thirty Chamber members attended the meeting, which had originally been called by the Chamber to discuss purchase of the computer which the organization has had on loan from the Alberta Chamber of Commerce for the past year. It has been used for Chamber purposes and has also been hooked into the publictender system. The Chamber agreed to make the purchase, and to continue to have the computer hooked into the system, which will eventually be used to receive communications from the Alberta Chamber as well.

President Louise Crane also told the Chamber about the upcoming Economic Development Workshop which will take place

Buddy wins Cheyenne

Buddy Bensmiller of Dewberry outran Bonnyville's Bert Croteau by a mere 71/100ths of a second over ten days of racing to win the 1993 Cheyenne Frontier Days chuckwagon races. Bensmiller's other wagon was six seconds behind the leaders in third place.

Competition at the show, billed "The Granddaddy of 'Em All," was fierce, and the lead was never held long by one driver. Bensmiller and Croteau went head to head every night, and every night the leader changed. The Northern Professional

Ideas for chamber keep on coming

Louise Crane
Chamber of Commerce President

The Chamber may look like it is on vacation but the ideas keep on coming!

Have you had visitors touring Elk Point this summer? Recently, I had the pleasure of hosting representatives from the National Historic Sites Service. I proudly gave them a tour of Elk Point, only to see that the park around the Mural, the Fidler statue and our schools have a very neglected look about them.

This year has had weird weather and the Town's budget for upkeep is small, so why don't we, as members of this community, adopt - a - g park? This idea is not new, it simply means that organizations such as Scouts, Guides, Brownies and Cubs, local associations, families or businesses promise to look after a park for one season. A trim every couple of weeks, extra flowers, or a touch of paint goes a long way to improving the looks of a small town. This in turn would draw more visitors and business.

Could we use a banking machine in Elk Point? How many times have you been caught financially embarrassed on the weekend or evenings and had to waste gas driving to St. Paul to a banking machine? While you were in St. Paul it was so convenient to pick up a few things to make the trip worthwhile. How many have had summer visitors who dealt with banks other than those available in Elk Point?

With a banking machine that accesses others, many of these problems would be avoided and it would keep the shoppers, both local and visitors, in Elk Point.

These are a couple of ideas that have been presented to myself, Louise Crane, as Chamber President, over the past few weeks. Do you have any others? Please feel free to call 724-2611 and make your suggestions on improving the community of Elk Point known.

Darlene Kozicky

Thanks to the Elk Point Lions Club for sponsoring the swimming lessons at Whitney Lake, and to the Town of Elk Point for the insurance coverage for the program. Andrea Fleming and Sheri Durnin instructed the 26 swimmers in Preschool level up to the white level of the Red Cross Swim Program.

The beach was an ideal setting for the swimmers, and we had 80 percent warm weather for the ten days. The swimmers' itch was not a big annoyance this season - only two days did it appear.

We noticed a major decline in registrations this season and it is hoped that more families in the area will keep Whitney Lake in mind for holiday planning for swim lessons next summer. We will have lessons the last two weeks of July in 1994.

the evening of September 7 and all day September 8, and involves a brainstorming session, panel discussion, workshops and question and answer periods. At the end of the workshop, the result will be actual goals, objectives and time line - in effect, a "game plan," Ms Crane said. Registration forms will be in the mail to all local businesses this week.

Vern King reported on the North East Alberta Marketplace program launched this past Wednesday, half of which is funded by Community Futures, half by the communities involved. In this case, the Town of Elk Point and the County of St. Paul are sharing Elk Point's portion. The purpose of the Marketplace is to bring buyers and sellers together and to keep business in northeast Alberta, King said.

King also reported that St. Paul - Smoky Lake Community Futures Executive Director Jean Champagne is resigning his post to become the new secretary treasurer of St. Paul's school board. King said that Champagne has done much to improve the economic climate in this area, during his involvement with Community Futures.

Community Futures is currently preparing a catalogue to promote local products which might have export value. Of 100 advertisements, eighty have been spoken for to this point, twenty of these from Elk Point.

THE NEED FOR ACTIVE LIVING
AT WORK

There are more than 12 million Canadians in the labour force and each of those Canadians spends a considerable portion of his or her life at work.

Here are some facts from the Administration Bureau for Active Living:

- Thirteen percent of Canadian firms with more than 100 employees have some form of workplace active living program.

- By 1996, it's been estimated that 25 percent of firms will have some type of program.

- Three quarters of the Canadian population have an active lifestyle - but of low intensity and short duration. Only one third of Canadians are thought to be active enough to benefit their health.

- One quarter of Canadian adults are completely sedentary. Almost half of adults in the workforce are at health risk because of sedentary behavior. More than one million workers report some health-related activity limitation.

- More than two thirds of the workforce feel that the workplace is an appropriate place to promote health.

- Time and inconvenience are important as studies suggest that these are the biggest obstacles in increased physical activity.

- Specific populations can be targeted in order to meet their particular needs and interests.

- The workplace can play an influential role toward creating a supportive environment and reinforcing all forms of physical activity.

WHAT'S NEWS AT THE LIBRARY?

Things have really picked up at the library this summer. Due to the increase in circulation, we would like to remind you to return your books as soon as they are due, or call the library and have the book renewed.

The answer to last week's question can be found on page 153 of Reflections. "The first hairdresser in Elk Point was Reva Morton. Her shop was in the drug store, and was destroyed by fire in 1938."

We would also like to remind everyone that the library has a Consumer Corner, so that you can pick up information on housing, mortgages, health, diabetes, government programs, financial planning, and much more.

To keep up with our large demand for books, we are receiving new books every day.

Enjoy a good book this summer

For the younger readers we have It's A Gas which is all about household gases, gas science and gas fun. Prints by Judy Ann Sadler is an easy craft book full of ideas for bored little hands. For those wet afternoons the following stories will help pass the time: Tillie and the Rhinoceros by Sheila White Stanton; The Magic Powder by Jean-Pierre Guilet; along with Five Bad Boys, Billy Que and The Dust Dobbin by Susan Patron.

For our medical section we have the following new titles: Never To Be A Mother by Linda Hunt Anton and 50 Things You Should Know About The Chronic Fatigue Syndrome Epidemic by Neehyah Ostrom.

We also received a new Pierre Berton novel, A Prairie Nightmare. This story is about the Barr Colonists who settled in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Other new adult novels include The General's

Daughter, Kissing The Gunner's Daughter and Behind The Glory.

Last but not least, we have a few new videos: Walt Disney's Beauty And The Beast, A Star Is Born starring Judy Garland, and Mr. Smith Goes To Washington starring Jean Arthur and James Stewart.

fluid, and that the ethanol had done its job. Tyson was lucky, he had no complications from the methanol alcohol.

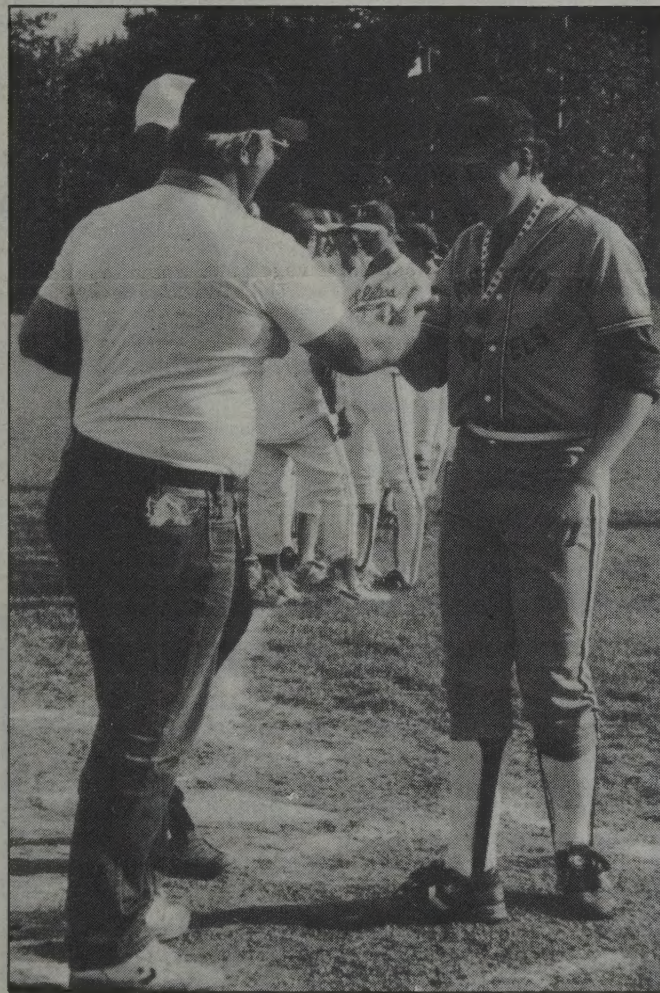

The results of this could have been much worse, and I am very grateful to Chris for finding Tyson when he did. If Tyson had drunk any more of the fluid, the results could have been deadly. I would also like to thank all the health care professionals for their prompt and diligent help.

The message that I want to give to all of you is, please be very careful about storing all deadly chemicals, whether for home or farm use. Children, especially young children, are very curious, and it would be a real tragedy to lose any of them because of our carelessness.

Fur trade descendants walk in forbears' footsteps

Over fifty descendants of fur traders James Flett and William Flett came converged on Elk Point this weekend to celebrate their heritage, meeting relatives they had never known about and visiting the site of their ancestors' long ago home.

Walking the trails their forefathers trod two centuries ago was a very special way to remember and commemorate the roots which branched out into large and intertwined family trees, linked with other families such as the Batts, Halcrows and Wishart.

Vern Wishart, who officiated at a non-denominational worship service beginning with a sweet-grass ceremony performed by himself, his sister Shirley Wishart and Peter Fidler descendant Louise Crane, told the assembly that tracking one's family history is often made difficult by older family members who deny any trace of native ancestry.

In Wishart's family, the 'old country' lineage of the Orkney Islanders was known, but the native roots were "a well kept secret" until after their father's death. A history of the Gleichen area published in 1962 told of their grandparents, the first settlers in that region, surviving the great blizzard of 1887. James Wishart had been caught in the storm and dug himself into a snow ledge, emerging with frozen hands and feet and crawling home after he found his horse frozen to death. The book states that "his wife's knowledge of Indian medicine and surgery saved his life." In contrast to the shame with which past generations regarded their native lineage, today's Wisharts are "tremendously proud" of this heritage.

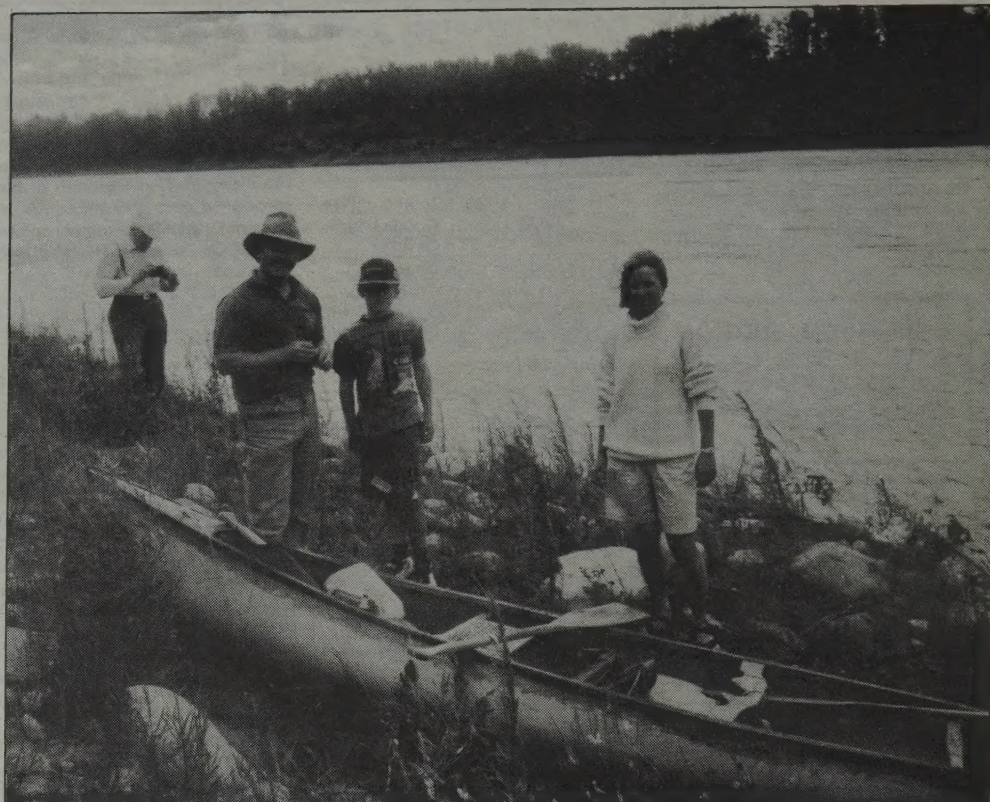

Similar comments were heard from many over the weekend, as various branches of the family trees were explored. Penny Deib of Entwisle and Peggy Zaraska of Elk Point found they shared an ancestor, James Swain, who was the journal writer at Buckingham House in 1895-96. Ms Deib is descended from Swain's daughter Maryann, while Ms Zaraska is descended from Swain's son John. This works out to fourth cousins, twice removed, the ladies said.

The weekend was packed with activities, including tours of Fort George Museum in Elk Point, tours of the Fort George - Buckingham House Interpretive Centre, musical entertainment by two Metis bands, the Frank Stockall Band from Kikino and the local music of Homer Poitras and his group. Shirley Wishart's outstanding slide show and talk on "The Orkney Connection" was of great interest, and featured a special guest, Peter Melnycky of Alberta Historic Sites.

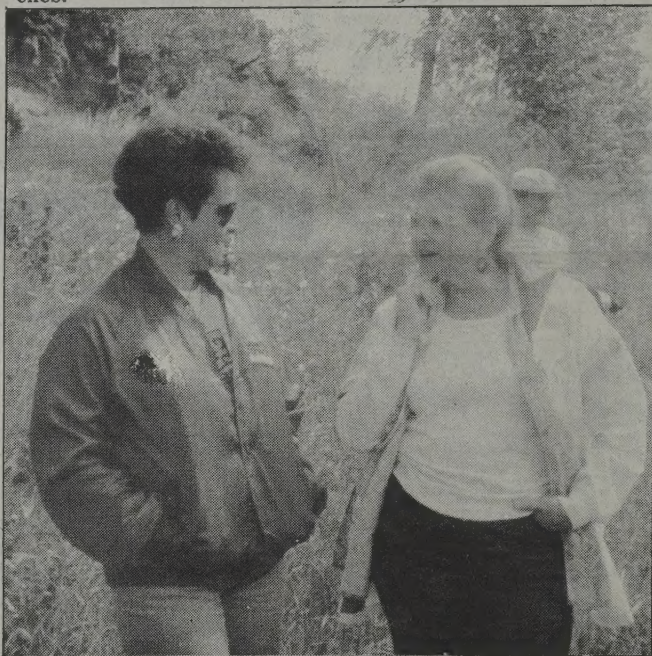

A highlight of Sunday's program, which began with a pancake breakfast at the Interpretive Centre prior to the worship service, was an opportunity to walk to the river landing site to see a canoe brigade paddle in. Five canoes arrived after a swift downriver run from Elk Point Bridge, the first bearing, fittingly enough, Wishart descendants Sandy Wishart of Canmore and Ian and Matthew Mackenzie of Edmonton. Plaques and passes to historic sites went to these paddlers, as well as to second place canoeists Tim and Cameron Zarowny and third place finishers Shelley and Robert Tymofichuk of St. Paul. Forts volunteer Pat Johnson was presented with an annual pass to all Alberta historic sites, for his efforts in organizing the canoe event and "for following in the footsteps of the voyageurs," said Louise Crane.

The Interpretive Centre was a busy place all weekend, with numerous other visitors joining in the activities. Children's games were enjoyed, as well as the Great Buffalo Chip Flip, which drew contestants from preschoolers to great-grandparents. Area resident Fred Jurak was the winner, with a 59 foot fling, with David Balon of Edmonton second with 57 feet, 5 inches.

DESCENDANTS PADDLE TO A WIN - Ian and Matthew Mackenzie of Edmonton and Sandy Wishart of Canmore were first to shore in the five-canoe challenge originating at Elk Point Bridge.

NEWFOUND COUSINS - Peggy Zaraska (left) of Elk Point and Penny Deib of Entwisle discovered they were "fourth cousins, twice removed" and were both descendants of James Swain, journal writer at Buckingham House during 1895-96.

Chuckwagon Association reports that Croteau "ran some of his best races ever, and gave the ever consistent Bensmiller a major challenge for the championship."

Meanwhile, in Turtleford, Saskatchewan, another local driver was doing the winning. Stan Robertson of Clandonald won the two day meet with a minuscule 12/100 margin over Grant Preece of Meadow Lake and Brian Laboucane of St. Walburg, who tied for second and third spots.

The overall NPCA standings are still very close, and the last three race meets will be instrumental in determining the year end champion. This weekend, August 7 and 8, the NPCA races at the Red Pheasant Reserve, just south of North Battleford, Sk. The following weekend, August 13 to 15, they will be in Craven, SK with a minimum of 37 wagons, and the season wraps up with the finals in Lloydminster, August 19 to 22 with approximately 40 wagons taking part. Ray Croteau of Bonnyville is still leading the point standings, with Ray Mitsuing second and Brian Laboucane third.

FUR TRADE FUN AND GAMES - An obstacle course with a fur trade flavor was great fun for the youngest visitors to Fort George - Buckingham House Interpretive Centre this past weekend.
